24. I'm going to read you several possible outcomes to the war in Iraq. Please tell me which one of these would be the most acceptable outcome to you.

A) There is an increase in the number of troops now, and U.S. troops leave only after Iraq becomes a stable democracy, however long this takes.

B) U.S. troops leave within the next year even if violence in Iraq continues, but some troops remain in the region to prevent the conflict from spreading.

C) U.S. troops begin the process of leaving now regardless of conditions in Iraq.

Or are none of these acceptable to do?

25. As you may know, President Bush recently outlined a new plan for dealing with the violence in Iraq. This plan includes sending an additional twenty-one thousand five hundred American troops to Iraq, spending an additional one billion dollars on reconstruction, and preventing Iran and Syria from interfering in Iraq. Let us suppose that President Bush's new Iraq plan moves forward. How much difference do you think it would make in securing Iraq against the violence that is going on there now—a great deal of difference, quite a bit of difference, just some difference, very little difference, or no difference at all?
